1301 U ST NW, WASHINGTON, DC

The Neighborhood

Throughout the years, the U Street Corridor has undergone tremendous transformation from being the epicenter of entertainment in the 20's to the hottest residential neighborhood in the city. The resurgence of urban living in this neighborhood not only supports an enormous housing demand but also serves as a retail and dining destination for consumers who are working and living in the area.

With a population of over 12,000 people with a high household income, all located within a 15 minute walk from the property this neighborhood is full of quality consumers. Our patrons are established, career driven consumers in their mid-thirties who either live or work within walking distance from the Ellington. They are educated and like to spend their time and disposable income on dining out, going to the gym or focusing on self-care. Locals who live at or around the Ellington value the convenience of having everything they need on the street.
